

Do you want multiple numbers from different cities and countries on the same phone?

Wouldn't that be amazing? For example - You could have your home land line, your cell phone number and you could even have an Australian land line all calling in and answerable on your one single device. You have to admit that would be sensational! Imagine the possibilities.

With NitoPhone you can have this. Virtual multiple sim cards on the same phone, multiple numbers all dialling into your one phone or device. (Devices include: Mac, Windows PC, iPad, Android, iPhone and even Blackberry)

It really doesn't matter where you are in the world you can be reached on all your multiple numbers. At present Nitonet (www.nitonet.com) offers "Multisim" for Nigeria, New Zealand and Australia. More countries are being added!

You can quickly choose which number you want to dial out from or just from your default number. This would be great for running a business in different locations, great for travellers.

I had to try this myself.

I signed up, got myself an Australian land line and a New Zealand landline - it was easy to get enrolled on the www.nitonet.com website and once I downloaded the app from the Apple App Store, it was just a matter of adding my assigned numbers on to the iPhone app along with my password.

It works! I now have 3 phone numbers people can reach me on all to my one iPhone. I can select which number I want to dial out, or take my default location. I even have the option of getting a Wellington number if required, as well as my Auckland number in New Zealand.

The NitoPhone app is packed with other features; including low rates for overseas calling, and crystal clear sounding phone calls like the person you are talking to is "Just around the corner". If you want value for money and a very handy worldwide phone experience – you want this solution!
